THREE WEDDINGS DURING THE WEEK

Miss Mary Continolo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Continolo, of Evergreen avenue, and Mr. Theodore Hartje, of San Francisco, were united in marriage last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at a pretty wedding solemnized at St. Maximus church, on Wellington avenue, Rev. Father James Donohoe performing the ceremony.

The bride was prettily dressed in a white satin crepe dechine gown, trimmed in lace, with a veil of tulle forming a cap and held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, carnations and maidenhair ferns.

Miss Nellie Continolo, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore a pink silk frock, trimmed in lace, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and fern. The little flower girl, another sister of the bride, Angelina Continolo, wore a pink frock and carried a basket of baby roses.

Mr. Ciro Gianavittario was the best man.

After the ceremony a dinner was given for the bridal party, relatives and a few friends, at the home of the bride, and at 8 o'clock a reception was held for the young couple, over a hundred guests attending. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening, the music being furnished by a three-piece orchestra.

After a honeymoon trip the young couple will make their home with the brides parents indefinitely.

Miss Ivy Hutchings and Mr. Everette Waters, Jr., were married last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bide's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hutchings, of Vista Grande avenue. It was an unusually pretty wedding and took place before a number of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Turner of the Good Samaritan church of San Francisco, before a beautiful floral altar.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette, trimmed in flounces of white lace. The bridal veil fell from a lace cap, trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas.

The maid of honor, Miss Peggy Baptiste, wore a frock of orchid taffeta, with a wreath of baby roses in her hair, and carried a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Floreon Waters was his brother's best man.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding dinner and reception. The lower floor of the home was beautifully decorated in pastel shades of crepe paper and flowers for the occasion, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

After a honeymoon spent on the Russian river the young couple will make their home on Los Banos avenue.

St. Epiphany church, Maple and Amazon streets, San Francisco, was the setting for a pretty wedding last Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, when Irene Modena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Modena, of Vienna street, San Francisco, became the bride of Mr. Leslie Balestra, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Balestra, of Colma. The Rev. Father Ryan officiated at the ceremony. Masses of pink gladiolas and roses were used in the decoration of the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin. Her tulle veil, which formed a train, was trimmed with a panel of lace and fell from a close fitting cap adorned with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Christine Balestra, sister of the groom, wore a frock of light green taffeta, trimmed in pastel shades, with slippers to match, and a band of silver leaves in her hair. She carried Pilgrim roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Dioguardi and Miss Lena Bacigalupi, were gowned in yellow taffeta, trimmed in pastel shades, also wearing a band of silver leaves in their hair, and carrying Golden Emblem roses. Mary Lalla and Helen Sullivan were the little flower girls, and were daintily dressed in pink crepe dechine trimmed in baby blue, and carried baskets of Cecil Breuner roses. Little Miss Cecilia Sullivan was the ring-bearer, wearing an ivory satin waist and black velvet trousers.

M. Angelo Lagomarsino was best man. The ushers were the groom's brother, Mr. Mario Balestra, and Mr. Mario Toso.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated in flowers and greens and streamers of crepe paper in pastel shades. At 8 o'clock a reception was held at Porto Rican hall, where dancing was enjoyed, the music being furnished by a five piece orchestra.

After a motor trip through Southern California the young couple will make their home with the bride's parents in San Francisco.

EAGLES TO PICNIC AT WALKER PARK

At the regular meeting of the Aerie a very good attendance was had. Brother Albright won the monthly attendance award, which was a handsome cigarette case and belt buckle.

The booster committee, with the vote of the Aerie, set the date of July 28 for the annual picnic, which will be held at Walker's Park, at San Mateo. Brother Collins, chairman of the boosters committee, suggests that every one set that day aside, for it will be a red letter day of joy for every one that attends the picnic.

A committee of the officers was appointed to help solve the unemployment situation. Any one needing any kind of help can obtain it by applying to Officer Heim. Also all brothers out of employment should inform Brother Heim, so that results may be obtained.

On Friday evening sixteen members of the good will committee, headed by the president, visited the Redwood City Aerie. Talks were made by the different members and a general spirit of good will was manifest. It is the intention of visiting all the Aeries in San Mateo county.

Tuesday night a delegation of some twenty members attended an initiation at South San Francisco and also visited San Mateo Aerie the same evening. Half Moon Bay will be the next place visited, on the third Tuesday of July.

Brothers Kennedy, Kost and Harper toured Portola Valley last Sunday.

Brother W. Ottoboni and E. Heim were dinner guests of Fred Collins.

Brother Poquet is reported improving. Brother Comapni is still in a serious condition. Brother Devanis has shown a steady improvement. Brother Malani is reported as convalescing.

On Saturday evening the champion drill team were host to the officers of the Aerie and their wives at a sumptuous banquet and dance. After the usual speeches and toasts an orchestra furnished music for dancing. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

BAY SHORE HIGHWAY WORK IS PROGRESSING

A recent issue of "California Highways and Public Works" reports that "H. W. Rohl's contract on the Bay Shore highway between San Francisco and South San Francisco is assuming shape where the bigness of the work is plainly seen. A long concrete under pass to accommodate a railroad spur and a double 8-foot by 9-foot concrete box in piles and heavy concrete mat floor, also a heavy rubble masonry wall have been completed. The heavy cut through Visitacion Point fill across Gaudaloupe Canal and much of the Sierra Point Cut with a maximum centerline cut of 84 feet, stand out as massive sections of a stupendous project. Costing close to a million dollars, and standing as it does, the throat of the main business artery out of San Francisco, this road may well be said to control much of the life of that great city. Progress on the work has been good and it can be seen that by the time the city of San Francisco has finished its portion of the work to the city limits, this work will be ready to take its share of the rapidly increasing traffic.

"This work has been carried on with little inconvenience to traffic as it does not use much of the old road, and where it does, great care has been taken, in one place a wooden structure being built to carry operations over the traveled road. The public have co-ordinated with the contractor and state to a marked degree on this work, accepting it as their own and treating it as such."

INAUGURAL ADDRESS TO BE GIVEN BY PASTOR SUNDAY

"A Great Mystery" will be the title of the inaugural address to be given by Rev. J. R. Stevenson at the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. Stevenson was formally installed last Sunday afternoon with a very interesting service. James Clement Reid, Ph. D., of Howard, preached the sermon and special music was rendered by Mildred Roof, Mildred Swan and Madie Irons. A program of activities is getting under way which will include the beautifying of the church building and the planting of shrubbery.

Child Burned While Celebrating

Eugene Sherman, aged 12, living at the Misison Auto Camp, began his Fourth of July celebration a bit early and with somewhat disastrous results. On Tuesday, while he and some other children were enjoying the noise of the firecrackers they had succeeded in procuring, one of the children tossed a firecracker in his direction. The child's aim was good, as the explosive landed inside Eugene's shirt, causing painful burns on his chest.

BEACH MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED

Officials have so far failed to dentify the body of the man found at Brighton Beach, and brought to Daly City by Constable S. A. Landini, although every effort is being made to establish the identity of the man, believed to have been murdered, the body being cast into the ocean.

Sheriff James J. McGrath of San Mateo county and officials of the police department of San Francisco, through relatives, had practically identified the body of the man found dead on the beach as that of O. E. "Jack" Haley, aged 45, a prosperous inventor of 545 Turk street, San Francisco.

Roger Haley, a brother of the inventor, was convinced that the body was that of his brother. So certain were the members of the family that the body was that of "Jack" Haley that funeral arrangements had been completed, when Haley bobbed up, and, like Mark Twain, insisted that the report of his death had been greatly exaggerated.

The body of the unfortunate man was buried last Monday by the county as another "John Doe."

DALY CITY YOUNG MAN GOES TO ISLETON FOR HIS BRIDE

Last Sunday afternoon, June 30, at 1 o'clock, Miss Elizabeth Wenstrom of Isleton, and Mr. Henry Blaylock, of Evergreen avenue, Daly City, were united in marriage by the Rev. O. E. Laud, of Isleton. The setting for the ceremony was the little Methodist church in Isleton, which was beautifully decorated with greens and Shasta daisies.

The bride, a beautiful blonde, wore a gown of white satin and tulle, trimmed with orange blossoms. Her veil was also of embroidered tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The groom's sister, Miss Hester Blaylock, was the maid of honor. She wore a gown of orchid moire and carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses.

Mrs. Florence Stone, of San Rafael, and Miss Lillian Neves, of Ryde, school chums of the bride, were her bridesmaids. They were dressed in pink and blue, respectively, and carried showers of pink sweet peas.

Mr. Edward Blaylock was his brother's best man. Mr. Alwin Brauns and Mr. Harry Faulkner, of Daly City, were ushers.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where a buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaylock left for a honeymoon in the northern part of the state and upon their return will make their home in San Francisco.

An interesting feature of the reception was the fact that Mrs. Lydia B. Stockwell, aunt of the groom, and Mr. John Benson, who were bridesmaid and best man at the wedding of the groom's parents, were present.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Blaylock, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. C. Collyer, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell, of Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. Holm and daughter, Mayor L. P. Gardinier and brother, Judge Hamilton of the Supreme Court, of Isleton; Mr. and Mrs. I. Neff and daughter, of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of Vallejo; Rev. and Mrs. Laud, of Isleton; Misses Ellie Helske, Helen Prescott and Lucille Clemens, of San Francisco; and Mr. and Mrs. Balsimer and daughter, Miss Balsimer, who was the organist at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, of Templeton avenue, and a party of friends spent last week end in Santa Cruz.

SAN MATEO OFFERS U. S. AIR BASE SITE

Efforts to bring the army's new Pacific air base to the San Francisco bay district have been given added impetus by the forwarding to Washington of a report containing the findings of the interurban relations committee of the Civic League of Improvement Clubs and Associations regarding the site near San Mateo, offered without cost to the government.

The committee's report, transmitted to the War Department and to the San Francisco and San Mateo county representatives in Congress, reviews the advantages of a site of 350 acres of pasture land in the vicinity of San Mateo and the San Francisco Bay toll bridge. The site has been offered free of all cost to the government by the owner.

According to the league committee, the site is ready for use, requiring no filling or dredging, and also has the advantages of nearby rail, water and highway transportation.

BANK'S STATEMENT SHOWS BIG INCREASE

New all time records—the most impressive of which is a gain of $39,000,000 in deposits during the past twelve months—are reported in the current statement of the Bank of Italy for the first half of 1929.

In view of predictions of Federal Reserve officials within the past few weeks, that member banks in the twelfth district would show a loss of something like one hundred million dollars in deposits, the increase registered by the Bank of Italy is considered more remarkable.

Aggregate resources ore $851,000,000—another peak record, and more than 45,000,000 above the totals of a year ago. The number of depositors has grown to 1,490,013 as compared with 1,347,000 in June of last year, while invested capital of $106,000,000 is $2,000,000 over the six months' statement of 1928. The cash position with $112,000,000 on hand and due from banks is another all time high point, and the same may be said for combined deposits standing at $705,000,000.

Additions to the physical properties of the bank are shown in the item of banking premises. Many of the branch buildings have been remodeled, and in some of the larger centers new structures have been erected. In San Diego the $2,250,000 Spreckles building has been purchased, while new quarters have been provided in Watsonville, Petaluma, Santa Monica, Stockton, San Bernardino, and Lancaster. In addition, a number of the smaller branches in San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles have undergone extensive improvement.

In connection with the published statement of the bank, there is a report of the invested capital of Bankitaly Company of America, showing more than $400,000,000. The combined capital investment of the two institutions is now well in excess of half a billion dolalrs.

JEFFERSON ALL STARS DEFEAT DEL RAYS

The Jefferson All Stars came out of their slump and hit the leather spheroid hard and often to pile up the immense score of 18 to 4 against the Del Ray Corporation baseball team at the high school grounds last Sunday.

Kagle held the visitors well in check, allowing them five measly hits, and also fanning eight batters. The real feature of the game was the sensational fielding of M. Plansky at second base.

Manager Vick Barskey has arranged a game with the San Anselmo Wildcats for July 4.

ODDS AND ENDS OF WEEK'S NEWS

What was declared to be the biggest brewery with the most extensive equipment ever set up in San Mateo county was revealed by Sheriff James J. McGrath and a posse of deputies last Monday when they raided a harmless looking residence near the San Mateo county Community hospital. They declared they found the manufacture of home brew in full blast in the rear of the place. The equipment was capable of producing 250 cases of pint bottles of beer per day, ready for shipment.

In an election held last Saturday, residents of Belmont voted in favor of the formation of a water district. First steps soon will be taken to complete a survey of the needs of the district and reach a decision on the amount of money needed. After that the supervisors will be asked to fix a date for a bond election.

As an aftermath of the death of Mrs. Henry J. Crocker and Mrs. Louise F. Monteagle and the serious injury of Mrs. Fannie C. McCreary by Carl Flannigan, who drove his car, while drunk, into the Crocker car, officials of San Mateo county have started a clean-up of "bootleg" places.

Plans for the erection of a four or six story steel office building in San Mateo at the northeast corner of Third avenue and Ellsworth, have been made public by V. Arata, head of a group of investors. The structure is expected to cost from $100,000 to $125,000.

Brought back to Burlingame from Monterey when he failed to appear to answer to a speeding citation, Mark R. Tyson, of Monterey, was given the choice of a $30 fine or five days in jail.

Shipment of this season's Valencia orange crop in Tulare county will be completed within the next week, it is expected. The total Valencia shipments from the county is expected to be about 3,500 carloads.

Continuance of the Watsonville Apple Growers and Packers' Association was assured by an overwhelming vote at a stockholders' meeting. Because many of the members were slow in signing up it had been planned to dissolve the organization.

Bob Watson and T. H. McArdle made a gold strike while digging a trench near the main street of Sonora. Gold filled quartz valued at several hundred dollars was found at a depth of two feet.

Fifteen school buildings in Bakersfield will be repaired and improved before the fall term begins by the expenditure of $120,000.

Dropping behind the five million mark of 1927, Kings county dairymen received $4,684,242 for their products in the last fiscal year.

On the ranch of Eugene McLean, near Oroville, apricots have been raised that are record breakers in size, four apricots to the pound, being as large as good sized peaches.

Eighty-five couples secured marriage licenses in San Mateo county during the past month, while ninety-three were licensed to wed during June, 1927, according to figures announced by County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese.

DALY CITY MERCHANTS DEFEAT COLORED TEAM

The Daly City baseball fans had lots of fun last Sunday during the game between the Palo Alto Greys, a colored team, and the Daly City Merchants. The game started out with a bang, the Merchants scoring six runs in the firts inning, on real batting, in which the entire team batted around. During this rally the manager of the colored team switched three pitchers into the box. The final score was 11 to 3 in favor of the Daly City Merchants. Randall pitched a steady game for the home boys, striking out twelve.

The Daly City Merchants have a game scheduled for next Sunday.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN KILLED AT COUNTY LINE BY AUTO

Apparently blinded by the headlights of the approaching machine, an elderly man stepped into the path of an automobile at the county line on Mission street last night and was fatally injured. The aged victim, who at this writing has not been identified, was dead when the driver of the car, Emil J. Berling, who gave his address as the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, San Francisco, brought him to the Mission Emergency hospital. He appeared to be between 65 and 75 years of age and was neatly dressed.

BOARD OPENS BIDS ON CREEK BRIDGE

The contract for the construction of the bridge over San Francisquito creek, between San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, is expected to be awarded by the county board of supervisors at next Monday's meeting to Collins and Martin, of San Francisco, whose figure of $27,325 was the lowest of fourteen bids opened at the board's meeting last Monday.

Acceptance of the bid was held over until next week pending settlement of the payment agreement between the company and the supervisors, to insure complete protection for the county in its part of the transaction. Checks which accompanied the two next lowest bids will be held up until actual acceptance of the Collins and Martin bid. These bids are from Frank Bryant, $27,500, and Frank L. Minor, $27,666.

While the San Mateo county supervisors were meeting in Redwood City to open the bids, the Santa Clara supervisors were taking similar action in San Jose. Identical bids were submitted to both boards.

Because speedy construction of the bridge is necessary and neither county has sufficient funds in the treasuries to go ahead with the work, the project will be financed by the Stanford University. Approximations for repayment will be made in next year's budgets of both counties.

The old 40-year-old bridge recently crumbled while a motor stage was crossing the structure. Occupants of the bus miraculously escaped serious injury or possible death.

The board passed a resolution changing the procedure for improvements in the Blossom Heath Manor at Beresford.

Grace L. Cooper, county treasurer, appeared before the board with the complaint that under the 1911 act extra work was made for her department and that the law doesn't provide funds for additional assistants. Mrs. Cooper says she has been paying for these assistants out of her own funds. District Attorney Swart assured her that the supervisors could do nothing about the situation and advised her to leave the work undone. He declared that he is in a similar position and was contemplating taking the course he recommended for her to pursue.

A resolution favoring the Brewer island site for the army air base was adopted by the supervisors and similar resolutions were passed urging the San Francisco board of supervisors and the Chamber of Commerce of that city to take similar action.

The board adjourned at noon in order to allow the supervisors to attend the afternoon meeting of the San Francisco supervisors.

Action on a resolution presented by Bert Mansfield, city attorney of Redwood City, to close a portion of the Alameda de los Pulgas road between Redwood City and San Carlos was held over until next Monday.

Taxes on city property which is a part of new Broadway, in Redwood City, were cancelled.

The applications of William A. Tinsey of Burlingame, Al J. Walty of San Mateo, and Mansford Walsberg of Redwood City, for positions on the county traffic squad were filed.

OUCH! DENTISTS ARE COMING IN DROVES

The "Golden Gates" of the West will literally be thrown open next week to welcome the influx of over three thousand western dentists, who plan to come to San Francisco to participate in the second triennial Pacific Coast Dental Conference, which will convene in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium, July 8 to 12, inclusive.

Delegations from seven states of the far west—Montana, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon and California, as well as British Columbia, will be present at the conference, and the dental associations of each of these sections will contribute to the educational sessions with clinical and lecture programs. Dental exhibitions from every district will also be on display for the length of the conclave.

FLANNIGAN IS BOUND OVER TO THE SUPERIOR COURT

Carl Flannigan, driver of the car responsible for the accident in which Mrs. Henry J. Crocker and Mrs. Louise F. Monteagle were instantly killed on Wednesday of last week, at Atherton, was held over to the Superior Court by Justice of the Peace Edward McAuliffe, on charges of manslaughter and driving a car while intoxicated. Flannigan had no counsel representing him, and District Attorney Swart represented the people.

Mrs. Fannie Crocker McCreary, a third passenger in the Crocker car, who was seriously injured in the crash, is reported as improved at the Palo Alto hospital.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEES' SALE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT default having been made in the payment of the promissory note and sums secured by that certain deed of trust executed by OTTO STADELMAIER, a single man, to GEO. M. MITCHELL and JOHN HENDERSON, as trustees for the benefit of HOME MUTUAL DEPOSIT-LOAN COMPANY, a corporation, as beneficiary, dated December 23, 1925, and recorded December 31, 1925, in Volume 209 of Official Records, page 167, et seq., in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California;

And notice of such default and of the election of said beneficiary to cause the property described in said deed of trust to be sold to satisfy the obligations secured by said deed of trust, having been recorded by said beneficiary, the owner and holder of the obligations and indebtedness secured thereby, on the 13th day of March, 1929, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 403 of Official Records, page 246;

And said HOME MUTUAL DEPOSIT-LOAN COMPANY, said beneficiary, having by resolution of its Board of Directors duly certified and recorded, substituted and appointed J. DIMMER as one of the trustees in said deed of trust in the place and stead of JOHN HENDERSON;

And demand having been made upon the undersigned, as trustees under said deed of trust, by said beneficiary, that said undersigned sell the premises by said deed of trust conveyed and hereinafter described as in said deed of trust provided;

Now Therefore, in accordance with the terms and conditions and under the authority of said deed of trust, and in pursuance of a resolution passed and adopted on the 19th day of February, 1929, by the Board of Directors of said HOME MUTUAL DEPOSIT-LOAN COMPANY, the owner and holder of the promissory note hereinbefore referred to, declaring that default in the payment of the principal and interest on said promissory note has been made and requesting and directing the undersigned as trustees under the power and authority conferred upon said trustees by said deed of trust, and in pursuance of said resolution, to sell said real property described in said deed of trust and hereinafter particularly described, to satisfy said indebtedness, the undersigned, GEO. M. MITCHELL and J. DIMMER hereby give notice that on MONDAY, the 15th day of July, 1929, at the hour of 11:25 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the office of HOME MUTUAL DEPOSIT-LOAN COMPANY, No. 228 Montgomery Street, in the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, they will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in Gold Coin of the United States, all that certain real property, with improvements thereon, situate, lying and being in the Town of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot numbered thirty-three (33) in Block numbered two (2), as shown on that certain map entitled "Homestead Realty Co.'s Subdivision of Lots 140 to 153, incl., West End Homestead Association, Daly City, San Mateo County," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County July 31, 1912, in Book 8 of Maps, at page 17.

Terms of Sale: Cash, ten (10%) per cent payable to the undersigned at the fall of the hammer, balance upon delivery of deed, and if not so paid the said ten (10%) per cent to be forfeited and the sale to be void.

Dated June 14, 1929.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Ernest D. Shepherd, assistant manager of the San Jose branch of the Bank of America, has been appointed city treasurer, replacing George B. Campbell, resigned.

The construction of a road from Big Rock Canyon to Nicasio, at a cost of not to exceed $1750, was authorized by the Marin County Board of Supervisors at a recent meeting.

Final tests of the new sewer system installed at San Rafael were held recently. Acceptance of the system has been delayed because of its failure to operate properly in previous tests.

A gigantic topographical relief map of Tehama county on which special attention is to be paid to Lassen Volcanic National Park, will be the centerpiece of the Tehama county exhibit at the state fair in Sacramento in September.

With important items aggregating $11,050 omitted because of a lack of funds, the budget for Vallejo school district for the new fiscal year beginning July 1 will total $291,668. The budget for the year now ending totalled $299,631, indicating a reduction next year of $9,963.

The Oakdale Irrigation District treasury had a balance of $64,160.88 the first of June, according to the report of Treasurer Maxwell to the board. The funds were apportioned as follows: Bond and interest, $47,807.06; general, $3,077.82; construction, $17.96; revolving fund, $1,940.90; Melones, $11,317.14.

The transportation field was further invaded by motor buses when the Southern Pacific Motor Transport Company opened service between Vallejo and Crockett to replace the ferry service to Vallejo Junction. Connections between Vallejo and the Southern Pacific main lines are made at Crockett instead of Vallejo Junction.

Residents of Palo Alto now await the start of construction of the new $450,000 hospital for Palo Alto, Stanford University and surrounding community, following the success of a recent $250,000 bond issue. This was the city's share of the hospital project, the other $200,000 having been raised through public subscription.

Butte county probably will cease within a very short time to act as custodian of a valuable stamp collection, District Attorney J. A. McGregor said. McGregor said that his office had received several inquiries regarding the large book of stamps and one bid of $385 has already been made him.

One of the large jobs in store for the state bureau of fish reclamation, headed by George Neale, is the rescue of 100,000 steelhead trout from a stream thirty miles north of Clear Lake in Mendocino county. Neale learned the fish were in danger of being trapped by low water. When they are his men will net and transfer them to Eel River. Within a year's time Neale has saved millions of fish from "water traps."

Ninety thousand dollars a year will be cut from electricity bills in and about Eureka as a result of a Pacific Gas and Electric Company rate schedule, effective immediately. That company recently acquired the Eureka division system of the Western States Gas and Electric Company. The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has been authorized by the State Railroad Commission to substitute its own rates for those previously charged by the Western States.

Three Fresno State College students almost wished they had remained in jail to face burglary charges than the alternative of Student Council disciplinary measures. Dick Wilkins, Lawrence Beavers and Ramond McHenry decided cats were annoying them in hours meant for sleep. They chose a scientific mode of extermination and entered the college through a window for chemicals to concoct a deadly potion. But policemen saw them and they spent the night in jail. The college announced it would handle its own discipline.

Sausalito's fears over a rumored prospect that Tiburon was to become an auto-ferry terminal of prime importance were allayed following receipt of a telegram from B. B. Meek, state director of public works. Meek addressing E. W. Jackson, president of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce, said that Sausalito was to remain as the primary entry link between San Francisco and the north. He said that the north bay city's alarm might have been brought about by the intention to improve the Belvedere-Tiburon crossing and a contiguous highway to a road of secondary character. Meek also said that work was about to start to improve links in the highway between Sausalito and San Rafael.

The amount of $4,400,000 has been requested by the yard officers to be spent at Mare Island during the next six months on new work. The sum of $1,500,000 will be spent from July to December in labor and material on the new diver V-6 while $2,800,000 is necessary to pay for labor and material on the new cruiser Chicago.

Fifteen arrests were made recently by W. B. Sellmer, game warden, and Mrs. W. B. Sellmer, deputy game warden, for possession of undersize abalones along the Marin County coast. In each case the offenders were fined $25.

ILLINOIS LOOKS FOR STRONG TEAM

Well Fortified Squad Will Try to Retain Title.

Football champions of the western conference for the past two years, the University of Illinois will look to a squad well fortified with experienced players as it essays to retain the title.

Twenty men who have won the traditional orange "I" will form a nucleus which looks impressive, but only part of them can be regarded as regulars as Coach Bob Zuppke recommended 26 players for honors at the close of the 1928 season. Then there are certain to be defections for scholastic and other reasons.

The Illini need new tackles most of all, then centers and ends. The backfield outlook is promising since the number of veteran backs is increased by the return of Frank Lanum, quarterback in 1926, whose punting, passing and all-around ability will be a noteworthy addition.

The nucleus of lettermen is as follows:

Two-year lettermen: Captain Crane and Wietz, guards; Gordon and Burdick, tackles; Jolley, end; Timm, Mills, Humbert, Walker and Peters, backs.

One-year lettermen: Hills, tackle; Roush, center; Langhorst, guard; Lewis and Tarwain, ends and Bergeson and Hall, backs.

Lettermen from previous years: Frank Lanum, 1926; A. E. Wolgast, 1927 and Joe Green, 1924 and 1925.

Among the promising sophomores will be the following: E. J. Kawal, A. G. Pease and L. Bulpitt, centers; R. E. Nusspickel, tackle; H. L. Smith, guard; J. C. Evans, A. F. Schultz and D. C. Munch, backs and H. J. Steinman, end.

Out of the 26 players who received varsity letters last fall, only three will be available for the 1930 team, which indicates that Zuppke will be interested in the development of sophomores and in the ability of incoming freshmen.

The coach himself is in the far West, instructing in two summer courses and spending the rest of the time in painting and other recreations. Zuppke realizes that his men face a stiff schedule in Kansas, Northwestern, Chicago, Iowa, Ohio State, Michigan and Army.

The Illini practice opens September 16, since September 15, the legal day for beginning, falls on Sunday. The 16th is also the first day of registration at the university so that the Illini will have no opportunity for uninterrupted practice as will be the better fortune of several rivals.

TO THE DANDELION

How like a prodigal doth nature seem,
When thou, for all thy gold, so common art,
Thou teachest me to deem
More sacredly of every human heart,
Since each reflects in joy its scanty gleam
Of heaven, and could some wondrous secret show,
Did we but pay the love we owe,
And with a child's undoubting wisdom look
On all these living pages of God's book.

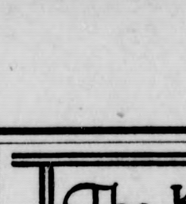
OUTDOOR MEALS

Today an outdoor meal may be anything from a snack taken on a long hike to a banquet under the trees in the garden or on the porch. In the old days an outdoor meal, unless it was a barbacue, seldom meant a warm meal. Now with all the appliances and conveniences for outdoor living, suggestions for the meals must include the picnics arranged for schools, church societies, small groups of friends and oftimes most elaborate social functions. The camper, too, is legion and needs to keep in mind the staple foods needed for the outing.



The sandwich is appropriate to all such meals; with it and a thermos bottle of hot or cold drink, one may find rest and appetite-delight in the glorious out-of-doors.

The following combinations are excellent for sandwich fillings: Grated American cheese, sweet pickle chopped, chopped nasturtium leaves, cress, chives, minced ham, bologna, dried beef or tongue, cooked meat with mayonnaise.

Slices of cold roast lamb, spread with mayonnaise to which a bit of minced mint has been added.

Creamed cheese mixed with chopped pecans, chopped candied orange peel and mayonnaise with brown bread.

Cold sliced chicken, chopped celery, mayonnaise, or corn relish, chopped pickled cauliflower, mushrooms.

Summer sausage, spread with mayonnaise to which hard cooked egg, chopped nasturtium leaves have been added. Serve on rye bread.

For drinks, iced grape juice may be put into thermos bottles, iced lemon or orangeade, tea, coffee or cocoa, cold or hot.

With the paper napkins, paper dishes and even paper spoons and forks one need not have much to do when the meal is over.

A day in the open makes over-tired mothers and restless children, brings refreshing sleep to tired nerves and is very worth while to take as often as possible.

Salads, when prepared for a day's outing, if they are carried any distance, are better put into glass fruit jars, the lettuce wrapped in wet cloth and paper and arranged just before serving.

Various Dishes.

The dessert seems to be the one dish on the menu which puzzles the cook more than any other. Variety, appropriateness to the season and ease of preparation are all factors, together with its cost, which is far from the least consideration in most households.

Pie has been called the "Great American Dessert" and rightly for it is the most popular everywhere.

Dream Pie.—Take one pint of fresh berries or fruit, cut fine; if canned, drain. Whip the whites of four eggs very stiff, add four heaping tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and beat again. Add four more tablespoonfuls and beat until stiff, then fold in the fruit. Pour this mixture into a baked pastry shell and place in the oven until brown.

Chicken Pudding.—Cut up two chickens, add one onion sliced, two stalks of celery, two sprigs of parsley, one quart of water, one teaspoonful of salt, one-third teaspoonful of pepper. Simmer until the chicken is tender. Separate the meat from the bones and place in a well buttered baking dish. Cover with the following: Mix two cupfuls of flour with one cupful each of water and milk, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a tablespoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a tablespoonful of melted butter after the batter has been well beaten. Bake until well browned.

Serve with a sauce made by using the chicken broth, cream and flour for thickening.

Bob-Andy Pie.—To one cupful of sugar add one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves, two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cream these as for cake, add two eggs, two cupfuls of milk. Pour into a pan lined with a rich pastry. The spices will float on top while underneath is a rich custard. Quite different from the ordinary custard pie.

Bran Beverage.—Pour one quart of boiling water over three tablespoonfuls of bran. When cool strain, add the juice of three lemons and sugar to sweeten. Chill and serve.

A Few Little Smiles

TRAGEDY

Sandy called the police station. He was excited, almost incoherent.

"Throw a drag net around the city immediately," was the substance of his speech.

"Why," asked the practical chief, who was also an Elk, Odd Fellow, fireman, Chamber of Commerce, R. O. T. C. and what have you.

"I dropped a half dollar out of the window," came the far-off, fainting reply.

Hope and Fear

A Welshman was playing a golf match in which he was getting the worst of it. He was obviously chagrined, but kept his temper.

However, on one tee, where his opponent sliced badly, the Welshman exclaimed—"Ah, I'm afraid you're in the bunker, I hope."

EASILY LIT

"Wonder what kind of match Ethel will make?"

"A good one—she's so easily lit."

Her Husband—Absolutely! I hunted up the man that painted it and got his personal guarantee.

Its Purpose

Mrs. Butts—What on earth did you buy that massive cabinet for?

Mr. Butts—Why, my dear, it's a genuine antique. An old crusader used to lock his wife up in that before he went off to war

It's a Hard Life

Athenian Vase Prized Possession of Museum

An Athenian red-figured krater, a large ornamented vase used for mixing wine and water, of special importance owing to the fact that it is signed by the maker, is among the recent accessions to the collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. The wine jar bears in Greek the inscription, "Polion painted it," and is the only known one signed by this artist.

The piece stands two feet in height and is of about 420 B. C. The vase, unfortunately, had been broken and has had to be put together again with restorations of missing parts, but this has been accomplished without serious disfigurement to the decoration, which is in unusually fine style. Four, possibly five, other vases have been attributed to Polion—one in Naples, one in Bonn, one, with satyrs painted on it and another with athletes, at the Metropolitan museum.

Chinese Marital Troubles

Chinese women, eagerly striking out for freedom, have hit a snag. Divorces have appeared as a phase of the emancipation of women. Now that the sexes, among educated classes, have been mingling socially and professionally, it is inevitable that men who married under the old system of childhood betrothals should meet women who make them forget their wives. Divorces are easy to obtain in China, but second husbands are not. A discarded wife, therefore, travels a solitary, hopeless path.

New Use for Bad Eggs

Rotten eggs have been put to good use by a chemical laboratory at Leningrad. A process has been discovered whereby tannic acid, widely used in leather tanning and in a new treatment of burns, may be extracted from putrefied eggs. Tannic acid hitherto has been imported. More than 350 carloads of bad eggs are regarded as available for this purpose in Russia each year.

Poppy Day

The poppy is the official memorial flower of the American Legion. It is worn on Memorial day, which is the thirtieth of May. An annual poppy sale is conducted by the American Legion auxiliary just before Memorial day. The poppies sold by the auxiliary are, as far as possible, made by disabled veterans. The proceeds of the sale are used for rehabilitation and child welfare work.

"Cabinet Meeting" Now

"Sorry, but he's in a cabinet meeting just now."

It's the newest stall in the office routine of Times square. The "cabinet meeting" supersedes the best "conference" ever pulled, while "the long-distance" is now obsolete.—Variety.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. Clutching the cookie in his plump fist he gurgled "More!"

HISTORIC JULY FOURTH

No day in the year is fraught with such significance for the American people as July 4, the anniversary of the signing of the immortal Declaration of Independence. The story of the Declaration has been told and retold until it is a part of the consciousness of every American, young and old.

While other events which have transpired on that date have been over-shadowed by the annual national celebration, it may be interesting to note that July 4 is also the anniversary of the following happenings:

Foundling of Providence, R. I., by Rodger Williams, 1636.

Nathaniel Hawthorne born, 1804.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died; Stephen Collins Foster, song writer, born, 1826.

James Monroe died, 1831.

Cornerstone of Washington monument laid, 1848.

Surrender of Vicksburg, 1863.

Calvin Coolidge born, 1872.

The first week in July is filled with significant anniversaries, among them being the following:

Battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1862.

Battle of Santiago, July 1-3, 1898.

Washington took command of the Continental Army, July 3, 1775.

Admiral Farragut born, July 5, 1801.

John Paul Jones born, July 6, 1747.

United States annexed Hawaii, July 7, 1898.

THE FARM RELIEF BILL

After several years of discussion and political wrangling, the long looked for farm relief bill has at last become a law, Appropriations amounting to $500,000,000 have been authorized for the purpose of carrying out its provisions. Rather elaborate machinery is to be set up for its execution, and a large sum will go to those who happen to get on the new federal payroll.

In fact, it is suspected that a good many farm leaders are as deeply concerned with the payroll feature of the bill as with any other of its provisions, and a rather lively scramble for jobs may be expected. Incidentally, the success of the plan will depend to a great extent upon the caliber of the men chosen to operate it.

That some measure of relief for the farmer will result, at least temporarily, seems probable. Whether the new law will be of lasting benefit is more doubtful. If it shall be made the means of building up another great political machine, it may in the end prove a hindrance to the farmer's prosperity, rather than a help.

However, for the present at least, the country is committed to this experiment. Let us hope that the plan may be found to possess all the merits which its sponsors claim for it.

A FISHERMAN'S LUCK

Many of the world's greatest thinkers, and also some notable doers, have been enthusiastic fishermen. There appears to be something about fishing which lends itself to constructive thought, and the world doubtless owes much to the quiet meditations of the patient angler.

At all events, an idea which came to Clarence Birdseye, a young American biologist engaged in a fur-trading venture in Labrador, while on a fishing expedition, is said to be destined to revolutionize the food preserving industry.

It is well known to scientists that ordinary slow freezing methods, as applied to food products, cause ice crystals to form which pierce the minute cell walls of fish, meat and other perishable foods, thus permitting the escape of a large percentage of natural juices and flavor. Birdseye reasoned that if the freezing process could be accomplished quickly at an extremely low temperature, the cell structure would not be ruptured, and he began his extensive research into methods of producing and merchandising consumer packages of quick frozen fish. He succeeded in developing such a process.

Now the Birdseye quick freezing process has been adopted by the great new General Foods Corporation, which has purchased a controlling interest and will apply it to the preparation and distribution of fresh fish and a variety of foods such as meats, poultry vegetables and fruits.

So Mr. Birdseye may be congratulated upon having experienced a most unusual and remunerative kind of "fisherman's luck."

RIVALS CO-OPERATE

One of the most significant trends of modern merchandising is seen in the tendency of groups of business men to pool their advertising efforts in behalf of an entire group. The principal back of this is similar to that which has long been put into practice with respect to community promotion.

A srtiking illustration of the new co-operation is seen in the action of ten leading soap companies which have engaged in a co-operative plan of advertising one of their important by-products, glycerine, and its effectiveness as an anti-freeze for automobiles.

Instead of fighting among themselves for trade for particular brands, they have formed a glycerine producers' association to prepare automobile anti-freeze glycerine according to one formula, thus producing a standard product, which they advertise jointly. Their efforts in this direction last year were so successful that it is said that they will carry on an even more extensive campaign during the coming season.

Local merchants in many lines might well follow the example of this and other national associations, and devote at least a portion of their advertising appropriaton to co-operative efforts. The old idea that "competition is the life of trade" does not always hold good. One may often help himself and his competitor at the same time through intelligent team work.

The quickest move ever recorded by a member of his profession was made by an Illinois plumber, blown out of a ditch by a gas explosion.

When companions threatened to beat a Chicago man if he didn't take a drink of moonshine, he knew there was no escaping the hospital.

It's hard to convince a winner that gambling is entirely wicked.

SHUN POOR PRODUCTS

Forward looking manufacturers are coming more and more to realize that the production of inferior goods is not only harmful to the individual firm engaging in the practice, but is damaging to the whole industry concerned.

This idea was emphasized recently by A. M. Kelly, president of the Wallace confectionery firm of Brooklyn, who has just been elected president of the National Confectioners' Association. He warned his fellow manufacturers that in these days of sharp competition among industries for a share of the consumer's dollar, the producer who deliberately sacrifices quality plays into the hands of rival industries and injures not only his own business but the business of everyone in his own branch of trade.

This is particularly true of the food manufacturer, Mr. Kelly declares, adding that "the human taste is a delicate and unfailing sense which no one can fool at any time, and when a candy manufacturer deliberately puts on the market an inferior piece of goods, he is merely driving away the ultimate consumer from candy to other things."

The sound advicce given to candy manufacturers may well be heeded by producers in every line. In these days of efficent methods there is little excuse for the marketing of inferior or adulterated goods. The producer as well as the consumer is learning to shun poor products.

FOOLISH TONGUES

Few persons are so well balanced that they never allow their foolish and uncalled-for remarks to cause them embarrassment and even serious loss. An incident related by a store manager illustrates the point.

A lady who was a good customer of the store entered and asked permission to use the telephone. When she had finished and walked away, a department head, thinking she was gone, said to clerk: "Who was she calling up? Some man?"

It hppened that the lady had not gone, but had stopped behind a nearby counter piled high with goods and out of sight of the questioner, but not out of hearing. She had not been calling up "some man," but heard the sneering remark and left the store never to return.

The employee's foolish attempt to be funny had lost his employer a valuable customer. Another case of opening a big mouth and "putting his foot in it."

NEW EDISON STAMP

Commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's invention of the incandescent electric light, a special 2-cent postage stamp will shortly be isssued to honor the great inventor. The issue of this stamp is an incident of Light's Golden Jubilee, which is being celebrated in a five months' series of events which will culminate in a great testimonial to Edison to be held in Dearborn, Mich., next October.

The commemorative stamp is of regular size, printed in red, with a picture of the original lamp giving off rays of light, above which are the words: "Edison's first lamp." In the corners appear the dates 1879 and 1929.

When one observes the almost universal use of the incandescent light and other electric appliances which Edison's genius has given to the world, it is difficult to realize that all these modern miricales have been wrought within fifty years, and that the man who made them possible is still living to receive the plaudits of his fellow citizens who enjoy these pricelesss gifts.

Perhaps no man ever lived to witness the fruition of his labors to such an extent as has Thomas Alva Edison.

CONCERT AT WOODLAND THEATRE NEXT SUNDAY

Patrons of the open-air theatre down the peninsula will have the privilege of hearing the beloved regular conductor of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra conduct his own band next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m., as Alfred Hertz will wield the baton over his men as guest conductor in the Philharmonic series for a single concert.

The program which the veteran conductor has announced for a single appearance in the al fresco theatre might aptly be described as "something new and something old," added to an ever-popular, beautiful symphony. Mr. Hertz will include in his program, by request, the Overture to "Tannhauser, with which the program will open. Following this, the orchestral arrangement of "Skyscapers," John Alden Carpenter's Ballet of American Life, made by the composer himself, will be given. For the last half of the program, Mr. Hertz will present the beautiful melodious Symphony of C Major of Schubert which was included in the first program of last year's symphony season on November 2, in observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the composer's death.

DALY CITY THEATRE PRESENTS SPLENDID BILL FOR THE WEEK

Tomorrow (Saturday) at the Daly City Theatre is not only Silvernite but a night of stellar attractions with a big first run showing of Columbia's massive picture play, "Stool Pigeon," with Charley Delaney and Olive Borden in the leading roles. On the same bill there is "The Hit of the Show," with Joe E. Brown and Gertrude Olmsted as the star performers. At the matinee there will be candy for the kids and another smashing episode of the serial "Vultures of the Sea," in which Tom Santich is staring.

For Sunday, Snooky White and his merry comedians will hold the boards in another of his comedy musical playlets, and on the screen there will be an exceptional James Oliver Curwood story called "Thundergod," with Lila Lee and Cornelius Keefe in the leading roles. The usual array of delightful short subjects will round out a perfectly balanced bill.

Monday will bring Adolphe Menjou to the Daly City screen in his latest Paramount comedy special, called "Marquis, Preferred." Nora Lane and Chester Conklin have important roles in this exceptionally clever comedy. Monday night is also Silver Nite at the Daly City, and it is well to be early if you want a seat.

Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian are the high lights of the attraction for Tuesday, when they will appear in "Someone to Love," a delightfully clever picture play that we are sure you will like.

"Wings," Paramount's super epic of the air, will be the attraction for Wednesday at the Daly City Theatre, where it will be presented at the usual admission prices.

On Thursday, Victor McLaglen in "The River Pirate" will be the attraction, with the Gift Nite as a second feature.

Friday will bring the second appearance of the new and popular Country Store man "Sam," and his merry gang, with a big party on the stage. "Behind Closed Doors," with Virginia Valli, will be screened.

Governor Bilbo of Mississippi, after a brief vacation, returned in time to keep the penitentary from being entirely emptied of its inmates. During his absence the lieutenant governor issued four pardons and seven suspensions, then left the state himself, turning affairs over to the president pro tem of the senate, who pardoned seven and suspended four; also commuted one death sentence to life imprisonment.

Three children of an 84-year-old Chicago man appeared in court to ask that their father be restrained from "squandering his fortune in the courtship of a young woman." The judge imparted the sad news there is no law to prevent man of any age from making a fool of himself.

The city of Rochester, N. Y., on April 1 celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of its first telephone exchange. On that date, April 1, 1879, no less than 460 calls were answered by the operator in charge.

"JEALOUSY," GOTHAM SUCCESS, COMING TO GEARY THEATRE

One of the outstanding events of the theatrical year will be the appearance of Miss Fay Bainter in her latest success, "Jealousy," featuring John Halliday, at the Geary Theatre, San Francisco, for a limited engagement, commencing Monday, July 8.

Miss Bainter comes direct from a six months' engagement at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York, where her play, "Jealousy," was hailed as a distinct novelty in a season not overburdened with out of the ordinary entertainment.

"Jealousy" was originally written by the French dramatist, Louis Varneuil, but the version used by Miss Bainter and Mr. Halliday is an adaptation by Eugene Walter, whose "Easiest Way" and "Paid in Full" secured his position among the first rank of American playwrights. The play is one of the most ingeniously devised dramas ever put before an audience. Its story concerns two young people who have been lovers and who decide to marry in order that they could continue their blissful relations legally. Into their life, however, stalks the spectre of a former admirer of the girl's, and the suspicions of the young husband are aroused to a jealous frenzy. In an attempt to test his suspicion, the wife resorts to falsehood, telling lie after lie in an endeavor to cover up events of he past life. These attempts, however, are only partially successful, and a tragedy is precipitated wherein the two young people are hopelessly engulfed.

Some women seem to believe they have sufficient will power to gossip or leave it alone.

BUILD 200-MILE LINE TO REACH BOLDER DAM TOWN

The town of Los Vegas, Nevada, now has telephone connection with the outside world, a new telephone line having been constructed 200 miles across the desert from Southern California. The construction of this line is the beginning of great activity in that section for Las Vegas is the town nearest to the site of the Boulder Dam, and will become of great importance when the actual construction of the dam starts.

One way telephone communication has been established between Paris, France, and Saigon, the capital of French Ind-China, and a complete service is expected in the near future.

THE TRAIL OF '98

A Northland Romance

STORY FROM THE START

Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman, starts out to seek his fortune. He arrives at San Francisco practically broke and meets a fellow adventurer whom he dubs the Prodigal. With Jim Hubbard they join the gold rush to Alaska. On the boat Athol meets Berna, a young woman traveling with her grandfather and a hard looking couple named Winklestein who figure as her aunt and uncle. The grandfather, Berna says, is obsessed with the idea of gaining wealth in Alaska. Landing at Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail. In a snowslide on the Chilcoot trail, which Berna and her companions had taken, hundreds of lives are lost. Fearful for Berna's safety, Athol hastens to the scene. He finds the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. Madam Winklestein refuses to let him see the girl, but he leaves a letter for her. At Bennett, Berna comes to Athol, confesses her love, and begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to take such a decisive step, and tells her they must wait.

For a moment she stared at me unbelievingly. Then, with a half-sob, half-cry of joy, she clasped her arms tightly around me. Something in her look, something in the touch of her slender, clinging form made my heart exult.

Once more we had whirled off into the main current; once more we were in that roaring torrent. The water smashed and battered us, whirled us along relentlessly, lashed us in heavy sprays; yet with closed eyes and thudding hearts we waited. Then suddenly we were sweeping along smoothly, and on either side of us the valley sloped in green plateaus up to the smiling sky.

I unlocked my arms and peered down to where her face lay half hidden on my breast.

"Thank God, I was able to reach you!"

"Yes, thank God!" she answered faintly. "Oh, I thought it was all over. I nearly died with fear. It was terrible. Thank God for you!"

But she had scarce spoken when I realized with a vast shock, that the danger was far from over. We were hurrying along helplessly in that fierce current, and already I heard the roar of the Squaw rapids.

"Be brave, Berna," I had to shout again; "we'll be all right. Trust me, dear!"

She was staring ahead with dilated eyes of fear. Yet at my words she became wonderfully calm, and in her face there was a great, glad look that made my heart rejoice. She nestled to my side.

We took the rapids broadside on, but the scow was light and very strong. Like a cork in a mill-stream we tossed and spun around. The roar of doom was in our ears. Thud, crash, roar, sickening us to our hearts; lurching, leaping, beaten, battered . . . then all at once came a calm; we must be past; we opened our eyes.

We were again sweeping round a bend in the river in the shadow of a high bluff. If we could only make the bank—but, no! The current hurled us along once more. There about two hundred yards away, were the dreaded Whitehorse rapids.

"Close your eyes, Berna!" I cried. "Lie down on the bottom. Pray as you never prayed before."

We were on them now. We both dropped down in the bottom of the scow, and she clasped me so tightly I marveled at the strength of her. I felt her wet cheek pressed to mine, her lips clinging to my lips.

"Now, dear, just a moment and it will all be over."

Once again the angry thunder of the waters. The scow took them nose on, riding gallantly. Again we were tossed like a feather in a whirlwind, pitchforked from wrath to wrath. We clutched each other convulsively. Would it never, never end . . . then . . . then . . . .

It seemed the last had come. Up up we went. We seemed to hover uncertainly, tilted, hair-poised over a yawning gulf. Dizzily we dipped over; steeply we plunged down. I gave up all hope. I felt the girl faint in my arms. How long it seemed! I wished for the end.

Then, swamped from bow to stern, half turned over, wrecked and broken, we swept into the peaceful basin of the river below.

* * * * * * *

Boats and scows were lined up for miles along the river shore. On the banks water-soaked outfits lay drying in the sun. We, too, had shipped much water in our passage, and a few days would be needed to dry out again.

Madam Winklestein I found surprisingly gracious. Winklestein, too, had conveniently forgotten our last interview, and extended to me the paw of spurious friendship. I was free to see Berna as much as I chose.

Thus it came about that we rambled among the woods and hills, picking wild flowers and glad almost with the joy of children. In these few days I noted a vast change in the girl. It was as if in the poor child a long stifled capacity for joy was glowing into being.

One golden day, with her cheeks softly flushed, her eyes shining, she turned to me.

"Oh, I could be so happy if I only had a chance, if I only had the chance other girls have. It would take so little to make me the happiest girl in the world—just to have a home, a plain, simple home where all was sunshine and peace; just to have the commonest comforts, to be care-free, to love and be loved. That would be enough." She sighed and went on:

"Then if I might have books, a little music, flowers—oh, it seems like a dream of heaven; as well might I sigh for a palace."

"No palace could be too fair for you, Berna, no prince too noble. Some day, your prince will come, and you will give him that great love I told you of once."

Swiftly a shadow came into the bright eyes, the sweet mouth curved pathetically.

"Not even a beggar will seek me, a poor nameless little girl traveling in the train of dishonor."

She had all the sad sophistication of the lowly born, yet with it an invincible sense of purity.

Once I asked her:

"Berna, if you had to choose between death and dishonor, which would you prefer?"

"Death, of course," she answered promptly. "Death's easy; physical death; compared with the other, compared with moral death."

She was very emphatic and angry with me for my hazarded demur. Never was such a brave spirit, so determined in goodness, so upright in purity, and I blessed her for her unfaltering words.

We were dreamers twain, but while my outlook was gay with hope, hers was dark with despair. Since the episode of the scow I had never ventured to kiss her, but had treated her with a curious reserve, respect and courtesy.

Indeed, I was diagnosing my case, wondering if I loved her, affirming, doubting on a very see-saw of indetermination. When with her I felt for her an intense fondness and at times an almost irresponsible tenderness. Was I in love? Poor, fatuous fool! I wanted her more than everything else in all the world, yet I hesitated and asked myself the question.

Hundreds of boats and scows were running the rapids, and we watched them with an untiring fascination. That was the most exciting spectacle in the whole world. The issue was life or death, ruin or salvation, and from dawn till dark, and with every few minutes of the day, was the breathless climax repeated. Every day were bodies dragged ashore. The rapids demanded their tribute. The men of the trail must pay the toll.

* * * * * * *

Soon I knew that Berna and I must part, and but two nights later it came. We were sitting by the river, I remember, a little way from the boats. As she sat, silent and with hands clasped, it was as if the shadows that for a little had lifted, now enshrouded her with a greater gloom.

"Tell me your trouble, Berna."

She shook her head, her eyes wide as if trying to read the future.

"It's nothing; it's only my foolishness. If I tell you, it wouldn't help me any. And then—it doesn't matter. You wouldn't care. Why should you care?"

She turned away from me and seemed absorbed in bitter thought.

"Care! why, yes, I would care; I do care. You know I would do anything in the world to help you. You must tell me, Berna. It will worry me indeed if you don't."

Once more she refused. I pleaded with her gently. I coaxed, I entreated. She was very reluctant, yet at last she yielded.

"Well, if I must," she said; "but it's all so sordid, so mean, I hate myself; I despise myself that I should have to tell it."

She kneaded a tiny handkerchief nervously in her fingers.

"You know how nice Madam Winklestein's been to me lately—bought me new clothes, given me trinkets. Well, there's a reason—she's got her eye on a man for me."

I bit my lip.

"Who's the man?"

"Jack Locasto. Have you heard of him? He's got a million-dollar claim on Bonanza."

Had I heard of him! Who had not heard of Black Jack, his spectacular poker plays, his meteoric rise, his theatric display?

"Of course he's married," she went on, "but that doesn't matter up here. There's such a thing as a Klondike marriage. Anyway, he wants me."

"But you wouldn't, surely you wouldn't?"

She turned on me fiercely.

"What do you take me for? Surely you know me better than that. Oh, you almost make me hate you."

Vainly I tried to soothe her, whispering:

"Oh, my dear, tell me all about it. I'm sorry, girl, I'm sorry."

She went on in her fierce, excited way.

"He came to the restaurant in Bennett. He used to watch me a lot. His eyes were always following me. I was afraid. I trembled when I served him. He liked to see me tremble, it gave him a feeling of power. Then he took to giving me presents, costly gifts. I wanted to return them, but she wouldn't let me, took them from me, put them away. Then he and she had long talks. I know it was all about me. That was why I came to you that night and begged you to marry me—to save me from him."

"But he can't get you against your will," I cried.

"No! no! but he'll never give up. He is relentless and of all women he wants me. He would break me on the wheel of dishonor. Oh, God!"

Her face grew almost tragic in its despair.

"I'm all alone, friendless, a poor, weak girl. No, I'm wrong. I've one friend—death; and I'll die, I'll die, I swear it, before I let him get me."

I was terribly distressed and at loss how to comfort her.

"Hush, Berna," I pleaded, "please don't say such things. Remember you have a friend in me, one that would do anything in his power to help you."

"Not Even a Beggar Will Seek Me, a Poor, Nameless Girl Traveling in the Train of Dishonor."

She looked at me a moment.

"How can you help me?"

"By marrying you. Will you marry me, dear? Will you be my wife?"

"No! I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man left in the world," she cried vehemently.

"Why?" I tried to be calm.

"Why! why, you don't love me; you don't care for me."

"Yes, I do, Berna. I do indeed, girl. Care for you! Well, I care so much that—I beg you to marry me. Since the moment I set eyes on you. I loved you. Long before I ever met you, I loved you. I was just waiting for you, waiting. Since the beginning of time it was all planned that I should love you. And you, how do you care?"

She stood up to hear my words. She would not let me touch her, but there was a great light in her eyes. Then she spoke and her voice was vibrant with passion, all indifference gone from it.

"Oh, you blind! You coward! Couldn't you see? Couldn't you feel? That day on the scow it came to me—Love. Do you know what I wished as we went through the rapids? I wished that it might be the end, that in such a supreme moment we might go down clinging together, and that in death I might hold you in my arms. Oh, if you'd only been like that afterward, met love open-armed with love. But, no! you slipped back to friendship. I feel as if there were a barrier of ice between us now. Leave me, leave me, for I never want to see you again."

"Yes, you will, you must, you must, Berna. I love you so, I love you so."

I crushed her to me, I kissed her madly, yet she was cold.

"Have you nothing more to say than fine words?" she asked.

"Marry me, marry me," I repeated.

"Now?"

Now! I hesitated again. The suddenness of it was like a cold douche. God knows, I burned for the girl, yet somehow convention clamped me.

"Now if you wish," I faltered; "but better when we get to Dawson. Better when I've made good up there. Give me one year, Berna, one year and then—"

"One year!"

The sudden gleam of hope vanished from her eyes. Then she turned to me in a sudden spate of passion, her face pleading, furrowed, wretchedly sad.

"Oh, my dear, my dear, I love you better than the whole world, but I hoped you would care enough for me to marry me now. It would have been best, believe me. Well, be it so, we'll wait one year."

"Yes, believe me, trust me, dear; it will be all right. I'll work for you, slave for you, think only of you, and in twelve short months—I'll give my whole life to make you happy."

"Will you, dear? Well, it doesn't matter now. . . . I've loved you."

* * * * * * *

All that night I wrestled with myself. I felt I ought to marry her at once to shield her from the dangers that encompassed her. She was like a lamb among a pack of wolves. I juggled with my conscience. I was young and marriage to me seemed such a terribly all-important step.

Yet in the end my better nature triumphed, and ere the camp was astir I arose. I was going to marry Berna that day. A feeling of relief came over me. How had it ever seemed possible to delay? I was elated beyond measure.

I hurried to tell her. Love words trembled on my tongue tip. It seemed to me I could not bear to wait a moment.

Then as I reached the place where they had rested I gazed unbelievingly. A sickening sense of loss and failure crushed me.

For the scow was gone.

* * * * * * *

It was three days before we made a start again, and to me each day was like a year. Why her sudden departure? I had no doubt it was enforced. I dreaded danger. Then in a while I grew calmer. I was foolish to worry. She was safe enough. We would meet in Dawson.

At last we were under way. Once more with swelling sail we drove before the wind. Perhaps the rich ground would all be gone ere we reached the valley. Maddening thought after what we had endured! We must get on.

The days were insufferably hot and mosquito-curst; the nights chilly, damp and mosquito-haunted. I suffered agonies from neuralgia. Never mind, it would soon be over. We were on our last lap. The trail was near its end.

Yes, it was indeed the homestretch. Suddenly sweeping round a bend we raised a shout of joy. There was that great livid scar on the mountain face—the "Slide," and clustered below it like shells on the seashore, an army of tents. It was a gold-born city.

Trembling with eagerness we pulled ashore. Our troubles were over. At last we had gained our Eldorado, thank God, thank God!

A number of loafers were coming to meet us. They were strangely calm.

"How about the gold?" said the Prodigal; "lots of ground left to stake?"

One of them looked at us contemptuously. He chewed a moment ere he spoke.

"You Cheechakers better git right home. There ain't a foot of ground to stake. Everything in sight was staked last fall. The rest is all mud. There's nothing doin' an' there's ten men for every job! The whole thing's a fake. You Cheechakers better git right home."

Yes, after all our travail, all our torment, we had better go right home. Already many were preparing to do so.

This was the end.

Vegetable and Animal Life in Death Valley

Death valley, in California, long reputed to be one of the most lifeless areas on the face of the earth, is not so barren as popularly believed. A group of scientists recently returned from having made the first comprehensive survey of the plant and animal life inhabiting the floor of Death valley. And their report upsets much tradition long firmly rooted in the public mind.

A summary of Death valley's plant and animal resources now scientifically and officially recorded includes 135 different species of plants, trees and shrubs; 124 different kinds of birds, 12 reptiles, 1 fish 235 varieties of insects, and numerous mammals.

The sole representative of the fish group recorded upon the floor of North America's greatest sub-sea level depression is a small minnow scientifically designated as Cyprinodon Macularius. This creature inhabits the salt marshes and salt water springs of Death valley. The mammals represented range in size from the bighorn mountain sheep (Ovis Nelsoni), which come down upon the floor of the valley from their natural habitat in the neighboring Panamint and Funeral mountains; on down to coyotes, rabbits, moles, mice and shrews.

Fighting Fire in Home

In case a fire starts in a room, close all doors and windows to prevent a draft. Give the alarm promptly. A few pails of water thrown on at first may do more good than thousands of gallons later. A blaze may often be smothered with a rug or blanket. If the clothes catch fire, lay the patient flat on the floor at once; running about fans the flames, which tend to burn upward toward the face. Smother the flames with a heavy coat, rug or blanket, if water is not at hand.

Tree Owns Itself

The Jackson oak at Athens, Ga., is referred to as the tree that owns itself. The unique deed which was recorded three-score years ago by Judge W. H. Jackson, at one time chief justice of the Georgia Supreme court, says in part: "I, W. H. Jackson, of the county of Clarke of the one part and the oak tree (here defining location) of the other part: Witnesseth, that the said W. H. Jackson for and in consideration of the great affection which he bears said tree, and his great desire to see it protected has conveyed and by these presents doth convey unto the said oak tree entire possession of itself, and of all lands within eight feet of it on all sides."

OSTRICH AND SHEEP

The ostrich and the mountain sheep were feeling better. They were both in the zoo talking from their yards to each other, for the day was very warm.

"Perhaps," said Blackie, "the trouble was with us a little while ago that we were having spring weather."

"You mean, my dear ostrich," said the mountain sheep named Jim, "spring fever."

"And why, pray tell, do I mean spring fever?" asked Blackie.

"Because that is the thing people get in the spring."

"But I'm not 'people' said Blackie." "What is spring fever, anyway? I only know it comes in the spring."

"How strange," said Jim with a funny little smile.

"Why strange?" asked Blackie, in quite a serious tone, as though he did not understand at all.

"Oh, I meant it as a joke," said Jim. "When I said it was strange that spring fever came in the spring I meant it wasn't strange at all, but quite the most natural time for it to come."

"And so," said Blackie, "you said it was strange when you thought it wasn't strange!"

"From the tone of my voice you should have known it was said in fun," said Jim.

"I suppose so," said Blackie, smiling a foolish smile.

"You see spring fever is something which makes people or animals feel sick and poorly and as though they didn't want to do anything at all."

"How Strange," Said Jim.

"That's what I had," screamed Blackie. "I didn't want to do anything at all.

"That was just the way I felt."

"Yes," said Jim, "it was just the way I was feeling.

"But that was some time ago."

"Some time ago," said the Ostrich. "It is summer now. I don't mind the summer. I like the dry heat.

"I like heat anyway."

"Well, I'm not so fond of it," said Jim, "but I do feel better than I did in the spring."

Then the Mountain Sheep went back to talk to some other friends and the Ostrich looked around and sometimes grinned and sometimes moved his head from side to side, and all the time looked just as foolish as he could look.

He looked as though he had started to smile over something—he didn't quite know what—and now he didn't know whether he should stop smiling—but decided he wouldn't bother to stop.

Oh he was a foolish fellow, was Blackie, the Ostrich.

But one thing he had sense enough to feel—and that was that it was very foolish to worry over being foolish when that was the way he was.

In that way he really had quite a lot of sense, and perhaps wasn't quite so foolish as we think.

He chewed a little and thought a little—but the thinking he did was very, very, very, very, very, very little—in fact hardly any at all.

GIRL CONQUERS LONDON

The recent London success of Rosa Ponselle as an operatic star is one of the most notable artistic triumphs of this generation. As one reviewer puts it, she "outdid the Angel Gabriel."

This expression arose from the reputed remark of Dame Nellie Melba, famed retired opera singer, who told Miss Ponselle shortly before her appearance in Norma that Londoners would not applaud a singer before the

But when Ponselle sang the great aria "Casta Diva" her glorious voice so captivated the staid Britons that they cast tradition to the winds and cheered her with all the enthusiasm of an American audience. She conquered London at one grand stroke.

Rosa Ponselle was born of Italian immigrant parents in Meridian, Conn., was educated in her home town and in New York, and was the first American singer to appear in a leading operatic role with Caruso, making her debut at the Metropolitan as his protege in 1918.

She is now 32, and her host of admirers believe that her career will be one of the most notable in the history of the operatic stage. Her wonderful voice is well known to millions of radio listeners, who will rejoice in her great success.

CHAPTER I—PART 11

Saturday evening, February 25, 1860, on Gunther's Island in Humboldt Bay! The red glow of the setting sun fades through orange to yellow and from yellow to a misty gray green; its reflection casting an opalescent glow over the hills that border the bay, and upon the still waters of the lagoons whose snaky arms reach inland to the forests of sombre redwoods.

Fearsome sounds, shrieking crys and mournful moans, are heard issuing from the crude Indian habitations upon whose walls the camp fires cast weird shadows, growing more and more distinct as the dusk falls away before the curtain of heavy darkness. Savage forms flit before the fires or stalk through the background, silhouetted for the moment, only to vanish in mystic fashion.

Within the huts are being observed the anccient tribal rites, carried through the years and exemplified in a pageant of dancing. Young and old of both sexes; sweating and tired; fantastically bedecked with feathers, their faces grotesquely besmeared with scarlet, blue, and yellow; swaying to and fro with subtle motion, darting forward into the circle and then retreating with piercing screams or guttural utterances; their glistening naked bodies weaving in the glare of the fires which suddenly flame up, fed by savage hands, and then die down to reveal ghostlike apparitions of slinking forms.

In another hut there is being carried on the ceremony of the "ten night' dance," a mysterious rite which continues throughout the time designated by its name. A fire burns in lazy fashion in the center of the dirt floor, the flames slowly rising to seek egress through an opening in the roof. Around the walls, swaying in unison, are some fifty figures. Their leader drones on in a humming tone, the remaining savages joining in until the sound reaches an unearthly melancholy howl and then fades away to a barely discernable moan, only to be raised and lowered time and time again as the dance carrys on with unrequitted fervor.

Night has reached its deadly hour. From off the waters the winds bare the faintest whisper of disturbance as a fleet of small boats glide toward the shore. Rubbing their bows against the bank they disgorge their cargo of stalwart figures—not the slinking forms of savages, but the bold outlines of white men. An Indian, passing without the firelight, observes a crouched figure half hidden in the tall grass. He utters a call of alarm. Too late! A hand is raised, a knife descends, the savage falls to the ground dead.

In a moment pandemonium reigns. Shrieks and crys are heard on all sides. The coarse crys of men, the beseeching screams of women, the plaintive wailings of infants and children. The white men, citizens of a civilized nation, show no mercy as with knives, hatchets, and clubs they proceed to wipe out the lives of those two hundred human beings who, but a few moments before, were happy in the thought that they were satisfying their tribal gods through the manifestation of their sacred ceremonies.

Less than a score escaped. More than half the number murdered were women and children. Stalwart braves, tottering old men and women, young wives, girls, and children, all were unhesitatingly sacrificed in that indescriminate slaughter.

The rising sun shone unon a scene of carnage which could know no equal. When the sun set that day it was learned that two other massacres had been performed simultaneously with that of Gunther's Island, one on the beach near the south entrance of the bay; one near the mouth of the Eel River. In all, more than three hundred savages gave their lives to satisfy the insane cravings of that white man's organization of whose membership no name has ever been divulged. Coming when it did, it destroyed all hopes of a peaceful solution of the Indian question, and placed upon the white man's history a scar which time can never erase.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

There was a gain of 7.8 per cent in the number of telephones in Grea Britain during 1928.

On February 1, 1929, direct telephone service was established between Finland and Germany.

Eighty-five miles of telephone wire are required for the average modern office building of twelve stories.

One-sixth of all the telephone wire mileage in the United States, nearly 12,000,000 miles, is in use in the territory of the New York Telephone Company.

Of the nearly 2,500,000 tlephones in the territory of the New York Telephone company at the close of 1928, more than 1,700,00 were in the Greater New York City area.

The Doctor

It was two in the morning. The doctor had been on his feet for twelve consecutive hours and he was dead tired. Just as he slid into bed and reached up to turn out the light, the telephone rang.

"Dammit!" said the doctor wearily, "there's one born every minute."

She: "Meet me at the library at seven o'clock."

He: All right; when will you be there?"

Father (sternly): "Where were you last night?"

Son: "Oh, just riding round with some of the boys."

Father: "Well, one left his powder puff in the car."

An Investment in Happiness

Taken all in all, there is no investment that is so rich in returns, both practical and sentimental, as home ownership. It pays in self respect, besides giving profound personal satisfaction.

"Yes, I advertised for a boy about your size. Do you smoke?"

"No, but you can blow me to an ice cream cone if you want to."

ABERDEEN and American Block—the Coal that satisfies.

Suzanne: "What shape is a kiss?"

Archibald: "Give me one and we'll call it square."

Primitive Bliss

Anyway, Adam and Eve didn't argue every night over which raido program they ought to tune in on.

He Had Lost Interest

Magistrate: "Have you a lawyer?"

Prisoner: "No, sir."

"Do you want a lawyer to defend you?"

"Not partickler, sir."

"Well, what do you propose to do about it?"

"Well, s'far 's I'm concerned, I'm willing to drop the whole business."

We carry a complete line of Builders' Hardware.

The honeymoon is over when she wants a heater in the coupe to keep her warm.
